MIRACLE FILM DISTRIBUTION

Loving Vincent

150 kunstnere har malet hvert eneste af de malerier, der krævedes til filmens 65.000 frames. Resultatet er en farvestrålende, fascinerende og rørende beretning om skaberglæde og lidenskab, passion og fortvivlelse. Udelukkende lavet af malerier!

Det er den 29. juli 1890. En såret mand vakler ned ad gaden i den lille franske by Auvres. Han holder sine hænder mod et frisk skudsår i maven. Manden er Vincent van Gogh. På det tidspunkt endnu ukendt for omverden, i dag en af historiens største kunstnere. Hans tragiske død er den dag i dag omgærdet af mystik og spekulationer, for hvem var det, der skød?

LOVING VINCENT er en helt usædvanlig film, der omfavner van Goghs kunstnerskab, skæbne og død gennem stemmen i hans breve og giver nyt liv til personerne på malerierne.

Vincent van Gogh is the world's most famous painter

Vincent van Gogh is the world's most famous painter. His Starry Night, Café Terrace at Night, Sunflowers, Wheatfield with Crows and indeed his own face in his many self-portraits are among the most recognized images in our world. Vincent is not only famous for his paintings, but also for his tortured life, notably for cutting off his ear and shooting himself while painting at his easel; painting to the bitter end of his unhappy misunderstood life. He is the world's totemic 'tortured artist'. Loving Vincent explores Vincent's life and work by bringing to life some of Vincent van Gogh's most inspirational paintings to tell his story.

Postman Joseph Roulin...

... (Chris O'Dowd), loyal friend to Vincent finds out that his friend shot himself somewhere up North. He has in his possession a letter from Vincent to his beloved brother, Theo, which was returned as undeliverable. On hearing the news about Vincent he sends his hot-blooded son, Armand Roulin (Douglas Booth), on a mission to deliver the letter by hand to Theo and find out what really happened to Vincent. Armand is a reluctant detective, not much caring for his father's erratic erstwhile drinking companion. After having witnessed Vincent on the night he cut off his ear Armand can all too easily imagine the unstable Vincent taking his own life. But his father insists, so he heads to Paris. In Paris there is no sign of Theo. He is directed to Pere Tanguy (John Sessions), the paint seller.

Pere Tanguy reveals...

...that it is not only Vincent that is dead: his beloved brother Theo died shortly after him. Pere then surprises Armand by revealing that Vincent wasn't some delusional loner and was actually famous among the artistic elite in Paris. Pere cannot fathom why Vincent would commit suicide when he seemed to be on the brink of stardom. So he directs Armand on to Auvers, the scene of the crime, to seek answers from Vincent's eccentric doctor at the end, Dr Gachet (Jerome Flynn).

Loving Vincent is the world's first fully painted film

We painted over 65,000 frames on over 1,000 canvases. We shot the film with actors, and literally painted over it frame by frame. This is a very laborious and time-consuming process. It has taken us 4 years to develop the technique, and it took us over 2 years with a team of over 100 painters working at studios in the Polish cities of Gdansk and Wroclaw, and a studio in Athens to complete the film. The reason we made the film is not because we want to be the first, or that we want to set any records, it is because we believe that you cannot truly tell Vincent's story without his paintings, so we needed to bring his paintings to life.

Loving Vincent

Who am I in the eyes of most people. A nobody, a non-entity, an unpleasant person

Someone who has not, and never will have, any position in society, in short the lowest of the low.

Well then, even if that was all absolutely true, one day I would like show by my work, what this non-entity has in his heart.

- Vincent van Gogh

Director Dorota Kobiela trained as a painter

It was the abiding passion of her life until she made her first film. Then film enticed her away with its excitement and camaraderie, but after a few years working in film Dorota missed the soulful and contemplative world of painting. A crisis ensued, during which Dorota turned for solace to the letters of Vincent van Gogh. Out of crisis emerged the idea to combine film and painting. She decided to do so by taking Vincent at his word: the words written in his last letter: "We cannot speak other than by our paintings". She embarked on making Loving Vincent, to bring his paintings to life to talk for him.

A graduate from the Academy of Fine Arts in Warsaw, Dorota Kobiela was awarded the "Minister of Culture scholarship" for special achievements in painting and graphics for four consecutive years. Through friends Dorota discovered animation and film, and immediately threw herself into learning these new artistic disciplines, attending The Warsaw Film School, Direction Faculty. She has directed one live action short film, The Hart in Hand (2006) and five animated shorts – 'The Letter' (2004), 'Love me' (2004), 'Mr. Bear' (2005), Chopin's Drawings (2011) and Little Postman (2011). Little Postman was the world's first, and to her knowledge still only, Stereoscopic Painting Animation film, and won Stereoscopic Best Short Film at the LA 3D Film Festival, 3D Stereo Media (Liege), 3D Film & Music Fest (Barcelona). For her sixth animated short, Loving Vincent, Dorota aimed to combine her passion for painting and film, and intended to paint the entire film herself. However once she expanded the project into a feature film the task of writing and directing was such that she had to content herself with directing the 125 painters. Loving Vincent is her feature film debut.

Hugh Welchman, co-Writer, co-Director and Producer, BreakThru Films

Hugh graduated with a degree from Oxford University in Politics, Philosophy & Economics and a vague notion of wanting to make films. He supported himself through teaching history, selling carpets, and even selling fish, while he joined various grass roots film cooperatives in London. After a few disastrous experiences, where the drama was all behind the camera instead of in front of it, Hugh sought out training at The National Film & Television School, Producing Department. He got his first professional experience producing short films for Monty Python, and then set up BreakThru Films. In 2008 Hugh was awarded an Oscar for BreakThru's first major production, Peter and the Wolf. The film also picked up several other top prizes including the Anecy Cristal and the Rose D'or. Peter and the Wolf premiered at a sold out Royal Albert Hall accompanied live by Philharmonia Orchestra, then at the Hollywood Bowl, and has since been performed at over 70 concert halls worldwide. His next film, Magic Piano & the Chopin Shorts premiered in Beijing's Forbidden City with pianist Lang Lang, then at London's South Bank Centre and New York's Lincoln Centre, and has since been performed in 30 major venues around the world with live solo piano accompaniment. Aside from film Hugh has produced and edited the Graphic Novel series, HOUND, by Paul Bolger and Barry Devlin, winner of Best Graphic Novel, Best Story and Best Artwork at Irish Comic Awards.
